I asked Edward of ee-web design to create a new website for Ashlar Mason. He had previously made one for our sister company 'Openplan Design' and I am pleased to say that, once again, we are very happy with the result. The new website shows what Ashlar Mason offers its customers in a clear and attractive manner, and it is easy for potential new customers to find what they need. It looks great across the full range of screen sizes and is getting a consistent number of visits (according to the analytics).

During the process, which took around 3 months, Edward worked with a number of my staff, and was able to adapt to the changing needs as the vision developed. He was always patient and friendly, avoided using any technobabble and worked in a timely manner to produce an end product which is a step forward for us.

As previously, Edward was professional, reliable and a pleasure to work with. I would have no hesitation in recommending Edward and ee-web design.
