Edward built a website for us here at the North London Street Dance Academy in October 2014.

The Academy has been running now for 6 years and has a certain image and atmosphere that I wanted to portray in the new website: fun, friendly and charismatic.

Edwards' ability to capture all of this within the website demonstrates his skill as a website designer, and also his ability to bring your ideas to life.

Being someone who has no idea about how to build a website, Edward made this an easy and enjoyable process, guided me through every step through his clear and consistent communication.

When I received the drafts and I asked for changes, they were done immediately, efficiently and most importantly, correctly! And looking at the finished product I couldn't be happier. It was just how I had imagined it to be.

Edward was reliable with time keeping when meeting up to discuss the web site as well as when deadlines for completion were to be met.

On top of all this, Edward offers tutorials once the web design is complete in order to give you the knowledge and tools to amend any changes or corrections on the website yourself in the future. This was extremely helpful and within the hour I had learnt a great deal. It was explained clearly and precisely and I now feel confident to continue developing the website myself.

I would 100% recommend ee-web design and would use Edward again in the future without hesitation.
